HLD appointed official agent of Raimondi Cranes in New Zealand

Wellington, 14 August 2017 - Heavy Lift Designs (HLD) has today announced that it has acquired the licence to exclusively distribute Raimondi Cranes in New Zealand.

Raimondi's ranges of topless tower and luffing jib cranes will now be made available to clients in New Zealand, together with after sales and technical support. After recently opening an office in Wellington serving both the North and South Islands, HLD will also provide all Raimondi installation and dismantling services.

HLD Managing Director, Blake Hammon, said that the company was looking forward to bringing one of the most recognisable crane brands in the world to New Zealand.

"Raimondi Cranes are some of the most technically advanced cranes in the world and are well known for their outstanding combination of intelligent design, reliability and safety," Mr Hammon said.

"We're excited to be able to provide New Zealand-based companies access to the full range of Raimondi products with the direct support of the manufacturer, and of Australia-based Strictly Cranes."

The Italian designed and manufactured cranes are a competitive alternative to the current dominant brands available in the relatively small market.

HLD is a specialist tower and crane engineering company that provides end-to-end crane engineering solutions; from technical lift planning, erection and dismantle planning and site planning through to feasibility assessments, third-party verification and equipment sourcing.

Established in 1863, Raimondi Cranes SpA is one of the world's leading manufacturers of tower cranes, luffing jib cranes and self-erecting cranes.
