Training is essential for safe crane operation

What site managers need to know.

The Health and Safety at Work Act 2015 makes site owners and managers accountable for safety on their sites including risk identification involving any contractors and subcontractors they engage.

Prudent site managers specify competency standards for all personnel employed at workplaces and audit compliance.

Skills - The Industry Training Organisation has specified competency standards in all areas of crane operations to assist New Zealand Industries to reduce workplace accidents and boost productivity.
